Reading Is Fun!

Book club members know that sharing and talking about books with others can be very rewarding. For people who feel that they are too busy to read, a book club helps them keep up with a reading schedule. Others have gained self-confidence by participating in or leading a discussion. And most people enjoy the chance to make new friends.

A successful book club should be small enough so the quiet people can be heard, but also big enough for many different opinions. The best arrangement is a mixture of ages and backgrounds. Some book clubs meet in bookstores, public libraries, or cafés, or even online, but most have their meetings in members' homes. This setting offers a quiet space and time for longer discussions.

A book club could specialize in one subject or type of book, like mystery, science fiction, or biography. Or the members could read all types of books, as long as the book is recommended by someone who thinks it would be worth discussing.

For the meeting to go smoothly, a leader should be appointed. The leader will usually start the discussion and keep it going when needed. Book club members should never be afraid to offer their opinion, even if they don't like a book. Different opinions make the discussion livelier!

- 1. A book club is only for people who have a lot of time to read.
- 2. Some members have become more self-confident by leading discussions in a book club.
- 3. A book club should have a lot of members with the same opinions.
- 4. A successful book club has members with different backgrounds and ages.
- 5. A book club could choose to read many different types of books.
- 6. Most book clubs have their meetings in the homes of the members.
- 7. It's better not to have a leader in charge of the discussion.
- 8. It's not OK to dislike the book being discussed.
